

Get Started With NetLibrary

NetLibrary provides access to the Commerce Departmental Library's e-content collection, which is full-text searchable, and available to be checked out by Commerce employees.

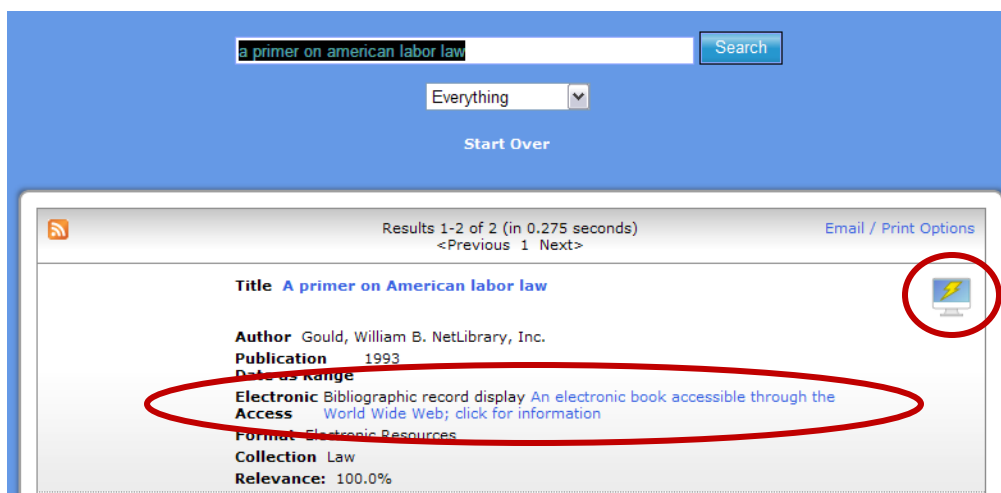

Accessing NetLibrary:

There are 3 ways to access Commerce's holdings in NetLibrary.

1. From any IP authenticated computer in HCHB – NetLibrary is one of the Quick Links on the left sidebar of the Library home page.
2. From a record in the Commerce Departmental Library's catalog. E-books have an "Electronic Resources" icon and a hyperlink to NetLibrary.

3. By logging into www.netlibrary.org as a remote user. For this, you will need to create a user account.

Creating a NetLibrary Account:

From a computer within the Commerce Department, go to www.netlibrary.org and click "Create a Free Account." If you do not see "Welcome to the US Dept of Commerce eContent Collection" under the NetLibrary logo, you are not at an IP authenticated computer, and will not be able to create an account.

Follow the prompts and click "Submit."

Searching & Browsing Commerce's eContent Collection:

» Basic Search ?

Full-Text ▾ English ▾ Search

Advanced Search

Search Tip: While viewing a title in the online reader, you can search the full-text of that title by using either the search field at the bottom of the tools pane or the Search tab.

In Our Collection ?

See our collection of:

- > eBooks
- Digitally Accessible eBooks
- List All Resources

From the NetLibrary home page, enter keywords into the search box, or use the “Advanced Search” function to input more detailed criteria, such as Title, Author, Year, etc. To browse the holdings available to Commerce employees, click “eBooks” from the “In Our Collection” sidebar.

Checking Out eContent:

2. A Primer On American Labor Law
by Gould, William B.
Publication: Cambridge, Mass. MIT Press, 1993.
View this eBook | Show Details | Add to Favorites

When you find the desired content, simply click “View this eBook” to be taken to the full text. If it’s material that you will frequently need to access, “Add to Favorites” will make it easily accessible from your NetLibrary account.

Finding Help:

If you need help using NetLibrary, visit the “Help” tab in the upper right corner, or contact the Library for further assistance.